

We need to limit the scope of what a media can own, not just in a single city, but in a single state. Media Conglomerates already have too much influence, and it should be curtailed. I'm concerned that "corporate media" is already sanitizing information to the benefit of large corporations, and to the detriment of average Americans. "Real" Journalism has declined dramatically in the last 20 years and it's due to corporate conglomeration of the media. What passes as journalism today is really more "sensationalism".
